Description:

Review "Your text is concise, well written, thorough, well organized. I think your updates of the 9e are great! You have a great text[]when comparing to other texts on sexuality (8 texts others at my disposal) I find yours the most comprehensive and current[]two vital components important to me in teaching the subject!"

"In terms of thoroughness of scholarship, this text is simply the best."

"There are many recent studies cited in the textbook and that[]s an advantage over many texts out there. I feel this text is so timely and up-to-date with my students. The student aids and self-help/instruction featured boxes (e.g., female and male Kegel exercises) are very informative, well-selected, and helpful to students. The quotations by participants or the authors' personal files are a wonderful way to connect with students because most students like to read stories rather than dry research findings and charts. In addition, this text is the best example I have seen in regard to contextualizing the findings of studies with racial/ethnic minorities."

"The chapters written by Crooks and Baur are superbly crafted. What I like so much about the draft chapters written by the authors is they include personal anecdotes throughout the chapter and by doing this, the chapter is so much more engaging than some of the chapters in the text I currently use."

"Let me emphasize that, overall, this is an excellent text. I believe it is probably the best text in the field. Finding criticisms for this book was a very difficult job." --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

About the Author The integration of psychological, social, and biological components of human sexuality in this text is facilitated by the blending of the authors' academic and professional backgrounds. Robert Crooks has a Ph.D. in psychology, and his graduate training stressed clinical and physiological psychology. In addition, he has considerable background in sociology, which served as his minor throughout his graduate training. His involvement with teaching human sexuality classes at the university and college level spans two decades.

Karla Baur a obtenu une maîtrise en travail social. Elle a suivi avec Robert Crooks une formation clinique et a participé comment ? la mise en œuvre d'un programme d'éducation et d'intervention HIV/SIDA au Kenya.
